

WORLD PEACE 2.0

From the brink of World War, to the brink of World Peace with email...

Welcome to the World of Peace, Harmony and Goodwill for all. As amazing it may sound, but all that is possible, with YOUR HELP.

This PDF has two parts. The first part about 10 pages will give you the basic idea of this idea, and the second part; FAQ section will answer to any questions the first part may bring up. In order to fully get this idea, you really should read the both sections. Thank You.

The ever so elusive World Peace is attainable. We just have been going after it, totally wrong way. We have been trying to talk sense to our leaders and the United Nations, but that will never work.

There is a way to achieve World Peace by We The People power. Together we can gently FORCE our politician around the world to reform the United Nations, so that it will be the world's leader and the police. This will eventually lead to World Peace, real freedom and the basic life necessities for all the people in the world.

Let's reform the UN to the way it was INTENDED to be!

From impending climate catastrophe, many wars to the renewed assault on working class living standards, we don't have time to waste on the status quo, lesser evils, and token reforms in the UN. We must tear it totally apart and rebuild it from scratch to a world leader it can become.

As humans we really don't like major change at all. It seems that we always must go through the same cycle: First We Resist, Then We Adapt, Then We Love. It takes a really open minded person to be able to see the benefits of something new, especially if it's a major life changing idea. Are you one of the few who is openminded enough to look at this plan with unbiased mind?

INSANITY

We tend to think that the world is pretty ok and this is how it should be, and that our leaders want what's best for us the people and our countries. But the truth is that we are just cogs on the wheel of the society and that's it. We are worked and taxed to early grave.

Slave freer Harriet Tubman supposedly said about slaves in 1800's in the US: "I freed a thousand slaves. I could have freed a thousand more if only they knew they were slaves."

Not only the Africans were slaves, but most people have been slaves. If you think about the past 2000 years and all the different cultures and great societies there have been, you will realize that just about every one of them were some sort of economical or direct slavery societies. Only people who did well and were free at least on some level, were the ruling classes, warlords and wealthy.

When people live in adverse conditions for long enough, it becomes a norm. And they don't question it, or even dare to dream about a better life. They think that this is how it's going to be; they settle.

In the past 2000 years, just about every insane and unbearable situation had to be ended by revolutions that were orchestrated by the People.

I am now calling for one and final worldwide revolution to take over the whole world, and to bring some common sense and normality back. Sorry... not back, because the world has never been normal, it has always been insane, because it has always been lead by insane people.

Are you willing to do YOUR part for the one final push to take over this planet and to create a paradise this world could be. If not, then you deserve to keep on living in savely in this hell hole that the world now is.

I bet my bottom Dollar, that by now you think that I must be nuts, and you probably say to yourself: "What hell hole? What slavery? The world is beautiful". If you did think like that; it just proves my point that you are so deeply and completely brainwashed that you don't even know that you are living in economical slavery and in hell, especially if compared to how free and great this world could be.

UNITED NATIONS 2.0

WE THE PEOPLE CAN GENTLY FORCE THE WORLD TO ACHIEVE A LASTING PEACE by forcing the nations of the world to reform the United Nations the following way

- The UN will be totally gutted and rebuilt to be streamlined and efficient.
- It will be reformed to be the world's real leader and the police.
- The UN and all of its member nations are obligated to protect any nation that is attacked. All wars stop here!
- The New UN will take a leading role over the world's' nuclear-, chemical- and biological arms reduction program.

- Within the next 20 years, only the New UN will have major armed forces. At the beginning the New UN will lease armed forces for any armed conflict it may be forced to fight, from the countries that now have large armed forces.
- The UN Security Council, veto rights and all similar power structures will be abolished.
- One country - one vote - majority wins.
- The New UN will have the power and mandate to resolve any conflicts, stop wars, and to get rid of, by force if necessary of any tyrants in the world who hurt their fellow citizens. The New UN will also be leader in combating terrorism.
- The New UN will take a leading role in dealing with any major natural or manmade catastrophes etc.
- The New UN will make rules and laws as how every nation must treat their citizens.
- The New UN will govern over major international pollution, global warming, nature and animal protection etc. issues.

The big powerful nations of the world have been trying to solve the world's problems with very limited results, simply because they never ever try to solve anything, but to PROTECT THEIR OWN INTEREST! President Trump just put this very nicely in Vietnam, when he said to other world leaders; "I will always put America first, as I expect you to put your country first." What if we would put what's fair and good for the common good first? WOW what a novel concept. Because every nation on earth does put their own nation's interest first; that is the very reason why nothing ever get resolved in the world. Now it will be the New and improved United Nations' turn to finally resolve all of the major problems in the world once and for all.

How can we achieve this huge world changing UN reform?

By starting a massive email revolution and social media campaign, in which people around the world are instructed to email to all of their current and future city-, county-, state- and national representatives something like this:

"Dear political candidate or elected official, I want to let you know that in order to get my vote in the next elections, you must be willing to make a public announcement that you support the UN reform and if an opportunity ever arises during your career, you will vote for it. In other words; you promise that you will do your best to make the UN reform reality. Thank You."

When enough people in different countries around the world will do this, then the politicians will realize that unless they support the UN reform they will not get re-elected, or elected in the first place.

This is not a one off, but when we keep this pressure on with emails and in the social media and also in mainstream media long enough that all politicians from local city level all the way to the presidents will be FORCED to get behind the idea of the reform. Then surely, it's only a matter of time before the reform becomes a reality.

One great point is that people around the world can do conduct this revolution FROM THE COMFORT OF THEIR OWN HOME, and practically no cost involved. How could ANY decent person say no to this? Say no to sending a few repeat emails a week! And the people who want to get more involved, and there will be thousands of those; they can print posters, create FB groups and to promote this as many ways and as much as they please.

Show me a person who wants to keep to UN and the world as they are, and I will show you the leaders of China, Russia and the US.

The best part is that the politicians don't have to do that much either. All they would have to do do, is to declare that they support the UN reform on their FB page and in media. Even this part is extremely easy. No traveling to meetings around the world, no votings, no agreements, no public events or appearances.... nothing. How could ANY decent politician say not to this?

Show me a politician who wants to keep the UN and the world as they are, and I will show you an imbecile.

We don't have to win every single countries' support. I am sure that the majority of the countries in the world will want this. After we have 75% of them, then those countries can demand a vote in the UN about the reform. Of course now in power countries will resist it, but what can they do, if most countries in the world want the reform. They will yield!

Once We The People get the UN reform accomplished, then we can use the same formula to force the politicians to pass many other beneficial laws for the humanity, nature and the world harmony.

If we can accomplish this once, then We The People will be in charge from that point on, and not the politicians!

Celebrities, sport stars, musician and other influential and famous people are the UTMOST critical part of this plan!

The easiest way to get this email revolution going is to find some influential person or peace organization with enough clout to be able to contact a few celebrities who are peace activist, for example: Bob Geldof, Paul McCartney, Yoko Ono, Ringo Starr, Bono, Angelica Jones, Opra, Orlando Bloom, Emma Watson, Kristin Davis, Anne Hathaway, Priyanka Chopra, Cate Blanchett, Katy Perry, Serena Williams, Gisele Bundchen, Selena Gomez, Nicole Kidman, David and Victoria Beckham, Shakira, Sarah Jessica Parker etc., and to get them on board with this idea.

Show me a celebrity who wants to keep the UN and the world as they are, and I will show you a moron.

How could ANY decent celebrity say not to this? Just think how easily the above stars could energize their own fan base and the media with a few comments about the idea. Other celebrities in their own countries would follow and spread it to their fans. This way it could go through the world in no time. This plan needs ONE right person to get it going.

The text above is the main part of my plan. Very simple, yet very effective. The plan requires hardly any money and relatively little effort to put it in motion.

Here is a rough idea of the direction how the UN could be reformed, and how that will save the world from the destruction we are heading towards.

- The UN will make detailed rules and laws about how all the countries of the world must treat their citizens. For example it will make a ruling about child labour, girls' school issues, forced religious teachings, forced marriage, genital mutilations, economical slavery etc. These laws would be strictly enforced; if necessary by the international armed coalition. If leaders of any country keep on violating these rules, then they will be removed and tried in the International Courts. Also the UN will make rulings over MAJOR issues like: global warming, pollution, wildlife, whale killings and nature protection etc.
- Every country is obligated to provide the basic needs and freedoms to its citizens. If any country is not willing to do so, then the UN will remove its leaders, set up a temporary government and will help to run this country until it's stabilized. If a country is too poor to do so, then the UN is obligated to help that country until it is capable of taking care of its people.

- The UN will be obligated by law, by any means necessary to get rid of any world leaders, political party, religious group or armed forces, which for example starves, imprisons people for political, LGBT or religious reasons, or kills or mistreats their own people in any way. This law alone would stop the most wars and people suppressions around the world.

If a person starts shooting a gun around from his balcony or beats his family, the local police has the absolute power to remove that person who is danger to his family or fellow citizens. Why leaders of many countries are not govern by the same law as its citizens are? The UN must have similar rights to remove and put in trial any heads of state, who mistreats their own people.

- The UN will be the world's police. At the beginning the UN will hire armed force coalitions from the countries that now have large armed forces for any warlike situations, or to remove unruly heads of states. All nations in the UN will pay their fair share for these operation.

Also the New UN will be obligated to protect every member nation from any violent attacks from another country. Most importantly, once the attack has been stopped, then the leaders, generals and all members of the government that supported the attack will be removed and tried in the International Courts. This will end all the wars the very moment this law becomes effective in the New UN.

- The goal is that in about 10 to 20 years there are no more nukes, chemical- or biological arms in the world, and ultimately only the UN will have major armed forces in its command in different bases around the world. Individual countries will have national guards and small armed forces mainly to be able to protect themselves against riots, terrorism etc., if there even are any of them by then.
- Any border disputes, independence movements etc. will be resolved in the International Courts and the New UN will make sure that the nations adhere to these decisions.
- There will be no more need for freedom fighters in any country, because any person or a group could challenge the current leaders in open and fair elections.

- From the text above it may seem to some that the New UN will be some kind of a military monster. But that's not the case. Just the fact alone that the UN must by law remove any tyrants who hurt their citizens, or leaders of a country that attacks another country, will work as a deterrent, because these leaders don't want to go to prison. Now they know that the other nations cannot do anything about them, and they keep on killing people and putting innocent people in prisons. Other countries scold them, but that's about it. In actuality this could work out so that the New UN would never have to use any military power, because the law alone works as deterrent. Also all the armed response will be voted in the New UN between the member nations. No individuals or groups can decide and start any armed operations.
- The security council will be abolished, in which five nations that won the Second World War rule the world. These countries don't have to adhere to the same rules as the rest of the nations do, because of the veto rights. They are: China, France, Russia, the United Kingdom, and the United States.
- A new value system will be created for the New UN, which is closely monitored so that all nations adhere to them as they interact, vote etc. in the New UN. These values will be based on common sense and good normal values and ethics.
- Any backroom deals, pressure, corruption, vote buying etc. in the UN will be totally unacceptable. If a country is caught doing any of these, there will be a penalty. If misconduct is severe; the penalty could be a hefty monetary fine and the culprits would be fired.
- The New UN will be in charge and takes a leading role in major natural and manmade catastrophes, if the affected country needs help. It's is probably much more efficient if there is one central point that coordinates the help effort.
- Every nation is allowed make its own rules and laws regarding political views, governing system, official religions etc., but they must provide the basic human conditions regarding housing, food, basic healthcare and education and such fundamental freedoms as: political assembly, opposition, religion, movement, speech, media, work, equal justice, etc. to all of their citizens.

The above ideas for the New UN may seem to most people like unreachable dream. That's because we have been totally brainwashed to think that this mess that we now have in the world, is the best it could ever be. The powers to be want to keep this constant "red alert" situation on, because that's how they stay in power.

We are so accustomed to and grown numb to the current situation that we are not capable even dreaming that the world could be free of wars and suffering. It's the same, if a person has been starving and living in slavery for 50 years, he is incapable to even imagine that his life would ever get great. Our lives will get beyond great. We can break free from the New World Order and create a New New World Order that will be beyond our imaginations. This is the PLAN for it, just trust me!

Of course the current UN Security Council members and countries with major armed force will be hesitant to give up their power and arms. But in the future, as they realize that the peaceful world is also much better for them, they will little by little get rid of their arms.

The benefits of the UN reform will show up really fast in every aspect in our lives that even these big hesitant countries will start embracing the New New World Order. The whole world will be more prosperous in materialistically and emotionally. This reform will be a true miracle and a gift for individuals, corporations, governments and the whole world alike.

In practice

It's the world leaders of the large countries that are desperately holding on to the old power structures. Also it's the big money, arm manufacturers, deep states and big corporations that profit from wars and uncertainty. They don't want peace and harmony. By reforming the United Nations We The People can take the power away from these entities. If we will not act soon; they will destroy the world!

We all are tired of wars, uncertainty and fear. And it's a shame when three major countries keep on living in the past cold war mentality, and keep the whole world in hostage and in constant limbo of war and destruction.

The most people around the world, regardless of their country, religion, race, social status or education want world peace and want to lead a simple good life. I believe that people will support this idea with open arms, and are willing to do their part for it. Especially since, it doesn't take that much doing.

We The People are always named in the constitutional laws of the most countries as the first and the most important beneficiaries, but we always end up being just workers in a huge industrial and governmental machine. We end up doing the most of the work and paying the most of the cost of running a country. Politicians, big business, rich people, banks etc. always end up reaping the rewards. This stops now!

Most importantly, once we get the UN reformed, then that will automatically lead to more goodness, because most the people in the world want the good of the world. This will start a new unrepresented period of goodness, health, wealth and wellbeing in the world.

We will create the real paradise that this world was supposed to be. We will take the powers away from the people who are destroying the world in ever increasing speed. We will break free from the Second World War era UN practises. We will make the United Nations equal for all the nations of the world. In order save this beautiful planet and to blossom as humans, we must give the United Nations the powers to rule the world.

I am willing to support any feasible plan to get the UN reformed and to achieve the world peace, but there just isn't any. We have tried for decades already and there is not any meaningful improvement. I have a simple plan that at least has some chance of succeeding. Don't we owe it to ourselves and the future generations that we at least try it?

I do need YOUR HELP in distributing this plan to your social media friends, blogs, web pages, media etc. This is not a one off, but it's important to keep a constant pressure up worldwide. Make a text document for this project, so that it's easy for you to copy the email address and the message and to send it even daily.

In each city, county, state and country there will be social media groups that put out contact information on current public representatives and of course during elections the new candidates' information, so that it will be very easy for anyone to send an email to all of them at once. (Or maybe Google will do the lists for us?)

We also need all the businesses and organizations to support this effort. They can put words: " World Peace, World Peace, World Peace" on their letterheads, internet, TV and print ads etc. This is also good for their image.

If we are not willing to do this this little bit; email and pressure our leaders to reform the UN, then we deserve to exist in this current chaos and a constant fear of war. It's that simple; your choice!

Please do your part for the World Peace! You have no idea how the world will be thanking you for your efforts. You will be amazed! How could you ever know where the UN reform will lead us, when every new good deed inspires a new even greater good deed. All I know, it will be wonderful!

Let's do it, let's finally transform the world!

End of the part one.

FAQ section below will answer to most of your questions, doubts and concerns you may have. If not, please email me and I am happy to answer and to add those questions here. Also I am very keen to get your feedback, constructive criticism and especially your ideas as how to improve this plan. This is work in process.

The UN reform FAQ etc.

How much suffering we have in the world today?

The consequences of OUR inaction of not being able to prevent and stop wars are extremely dreadful.

- Over 65 million people are now displaced due to conflict and persecution – more than ever recorded.
- The majority of the world's refugees come from three countries devastated by war: Syria, Afghanistan and Somalia.
- At least 70 conflicts involve non-state actors, a historic high.
- An estimated 126,059 people were killed in conflicts in 2014, the largest annual number of fatalities since the Rwandan genocide in 1994.
- The past five years have seen worsening trends across conflict indicators: more wars, more people killed and civilians increasingly targeted.

Sources: International Crisis Group, UNHCR, Uppsala Conflict Data Program

And you thought that it was getting better, safer and that there were less suffering in the world. How wrong you were! And this is just war related problems. On top of this, just think about climate change, animal extinction, pollution and other environmental issues, refugees and the last but not certainly the least worrisome issue; individual, national and total global debt crisis that it going to hit the fan sooner or later.

Can you even imagine what will happen when the world's economical machine grinds to a very painful halt? (And it will.) When there are mass unemployment around the world and refugees and immigrants are willing to work for less money. Starving refugees from the Arab and African countries are going to travel to Europe by the millions; we have seen nothing yet. That will lead to racial wars within nations and ultimately to maybe wars between nations and close to a total chaos.

You really think that our current UN and politicians around the world are capable of stopping this utter madness and disgrace. THIS CRAZINESS MUST STOP NOW!

I don't want to scare people, but I firmly believe that we will not have much time left before the current easy money policy will come to a sudden stop. At least be prepared: have at least six months' worth of dry and canned foods and water in your house. Also have portable radio, water cleaning supplies, first aid kit, walkie talkies, flashlights, batteries, generator and guns and bullets. I hope you that will never need them, but you just might.

There is another way, but are we smart enough to take it?

Now we finally have a workable plan for STOPPING ALL THE WARS in the world and it could help us also to avoid the coming major upheaval, if we act fast enough. The beauty of this plan is that We the People can do this together from the comfort of our homes. It cost hardly any money to do, and requires very little effort from us. Just few emails a week to keep the pressure on our leaders, until they support the UN reform.

How could revolution ever be easier than that?

Show me a country who wants to keep the UN and the world as they are, and I will show you China, Russia and the US.

What are all the potential benefits of this plan?

Below is a list of some of the major benefits. Of course some of them would show up slowly and/or later on. One MAJOR point of this plan is that the new governing style in the New UN will most likely spread to ALL other areas of life, from businesses to nations. When businesses and nations realize that this new governing style is much more effective, because it inspires people to work hard for the common good, and to take care of oneself, own neighbourhoods, cities and nations, then that inspires to other institutions to follow suit. And of course to predict how greatly that will change the society is unknown quantity, but I personally believe it will be tremendous. More than we can ever imagine!

Most obvious benefit is going to be that most wars will end once and for all. Nations can start scaling down their armed forces.

When the UN has the legal powers, mandate and the armed forces of the world in its disposal, and the UN puts a few tyrants in jail for the crimes against humanity, then the other tyrants in the world will realize that it's time to start behaving, because they will be the next. There will be no more "golden handshakes" for these tyrants, in which they could retire to some other country with the billions of dollars they stole from their people. This act alone will help millions of people to achieve basic levels of a normal and free life, compared to the absolute poverty and enslavement that they now live in.

The New UN will immediately start planning, with the help of China, Russia, the US etc. how to get rid of nuclear-, biological- and chemical weapons.

We can finally reach a consensus about global warming, rainforest destruction, major worldwide pollution issues, animal and nature protection, major fishing quotas, whale killings etc.

The real democracy can finally start spreading throughout the world. Also there will not be any political, sexual or religious prosecutions anymore in the world.

The real freedom and basic necessities for all: food and shelter, basic education and health care. Slums of the world will start disappearing one by one. Every country in the world becomes safer and more livable.

Has there ever been another world peace plan that actually has a potential to change EVERYTHING in the world for better? - Has there ever been another major world peace plan that includes your own neighborhood too? - Has there ever been another world peace plan that can really END ALL WARS, get RID of unruly DICTATORS and to give all the people in the world the basic NECESSITIES and FREEDOMS? - Has there ever been another plan to COMPLETELY reform the UN? - Has there ever been another plan that is nearly COST FREE and that can be conducted from the comfort of one's own HOME? - Has there ever been another plan that doesn't require hardly any effort from the politicians? - Has there ever been another plan that could do all this above in SHORT TIME? - Has there ever been another plan that could TRANSFORM the world into a PARADISE? NO there has not!

This plan can deliver all that and MUCH MUCH MORE. IT will create an unprecedented energy, joy and hope for the world and it will rise us to new heights as humans and the world as whole.

How can I think that reforming the UN could be this easy, since thousands of smart people and organizations have tried to do so for decades.

Reforming the UN will not be easy. It will take time and a lot of effort by very smart and dedicated people, but I am confident that together we will be able to get it done. I am optimistic mainly because the people who will be reforming the UN, will be professionals with high values, morals and ethics. And there will not be any countries, lobbyist or partisan groups trying to ensure their power and positions. The New UN will be as neutral as it can possibly be. When good people with good intentions create something that is good for the world work together; it will come together surprisingly easy and fast.

Many people and organizations before have tried to reform the UN, but they have been trying to reform it by wrong methods. They have been trying to talk to sense to politicians and the UN personnel; that will never work. The UN is way too complicated and has too many interest groups, and the Security Council countries etc who are protecting their own power, so that's why they have not succeeded.

The UN cannot be fixed by little improvement here and there. It must be totally gutted out and rebuilt piece by piece to fit the new UN framework. Now the UN is like a barely moving broken down car. It doesn't help if we fix the bumper of that car. It must be rebuild from the ground up.

My job here is to get the email revolution on its way. I believe that this part should be fairly easy; as soon as some famous celebrities, influential people and peace organizations start supporting this plan, it will spread throughout the world.

The actual reform will require a lot of time and effort from big group of dedicated professionals. First we must come up with some basic value, ethics and morals guide lines, which the new UN will be based on; non political and non religious. Just common sense values and ethics. Then we use these values as a guiding line to help us to make the rules and laws on how the new UN must be and rule the world.

There should be a selected group of professionals who oversee this progress. They will make sure that the UN laws etc. are following the guidelines of its new values and ethics.

One of the most important issues for the UN to deal with, on top of its own internal laws and regulation is to come up with the rules and laws as how every nation must treat their citizens. After that is all done, then it will slowly start ruling the world, making it better and better for all of us; animals, nature, people, businesses, nations and the world itself.

How is the actual email revolution going to be done?

People will be encouraged to collect and post lists of email addresses, all the way from local elected officials' to the president's email addresses on their social media pages. Also they will email these addresses to their friends and acquaintances, so that they can in turn easily copy them and then send emails to these elected officials, and then forward this information to their friends. That's how it will spread. People can write their own message, or use a pre prepared message.

The social media is big part of this plan. There we can keep on posting the message and email lists all over the place. Especially during new elections we must ramp up the emailing and posting. You can also send emails to embassies around the world and other city and government offices and everybody that you can think of, to show that we mean business.

Universities, schools, churches, environmental and social justice movements and peace organizations are also important part of this campaign. They can help by spreading the word to their students and members. We need every kind of organization to help with this part.

Show me a university or any organization, which want to keep the UN and the world as they are, and I will show you ignorance.

If you belong to for example some organization and for some reason they have not send an email to their members about supporting this effort, you can pressure them to do so. Ask their reasoning why they are not on board with this. Also you can pressure you school or place of work to support our movement. You can pressure your local newspapers, TV and radio stations to talk about this.

Make YouTube videos about this issue. Host online and real meeting and peaceful rallies about this. You could print some bumper stickers or flyers and place them on appropriate places. There are countless ways for you to help to spread this effort. Your efforts are greatly appreciated by millions of suffering children, women, men and the world itself.

It would also be great, if this would lead to demonstrations, in which people would do a spontaneous short demonstration in a public setting where there are a lot of people. Such as: sporting events, parks, public transportation stations, concerts, school grounds, city streets and especially during all political rallies and events. People would lift one arm up and chant three times; "World Peace, World Peace, World Peace". Other people could join in if they want to, but just a few people would be sufficient to make a public statement. This is a great reminder of the necessity of the UN reform. It should not be too loud for the setting, or happen too often in one time in one setting, so that it doesn't become annoying.

IMPORTANT: We want everybody to just KEEP ON sending emails to the leaders every day, for as long as it takes for them to start raising their hands in support of the UN reform. You can even email to other cities', states' or even other countries elected official. This is not a one off, but it's important to keep a constant pressure up worldwide.

I would think that the first countries that will reach the consensus on people and politician level on the UN reform, might be from Scandinavia or other small EU countries. As countries reach the consensus about this, we keep on ticking them off one by one, and when we reach about 75%, then we can start thinking about taking this to the UN to be voted on.

You want celebrities to help to spread this information; what do they have to do?

Celebrities can energize people around the world and get them involved with this movement. And what's good, is that they don't have to do that much, but send a message that they support the UN reform to all their media contact, fanbase, friends and especially their celebrity and influential friends around the world. And then, whenever they are being interviewed for TV or magazine etc. they would bring it up that they are for the reform, and encourage others to join in. It just doesn't get any easier than that to save the world.

Show me a celebrity who wants to keep the UN and the world as they are, and I will show you a moron.

Most importantly we want YOU to encourage your friend that are influential, famous, sport, music, TV and movie stars from the local level all the way to the superstars, to get involved with this. We need as much media exposure as possible, from the smallest villages to the major metropolises of the world.

The celebrities, sport stars and all famous people are critical part of this plan, because they have the media's and peoples attention.

Most celebrities are against wars and are concerned for the environment, so I am confident that they will join this movement. Also to be involved in a movement like this is good for their image. This is a true win win for everybody, if there ever was one

What if your attempt to reform the UN falls short?

I am quite confident that this would not happen, but should it happen; even then at least we would bring the necessity of reforming the UN onto the foreground. People would start thinking in terms of how the world could be better off for all of us, if the UN would lead the world. That could eventually lead to the reform anyway, even without this email revolution.

What about the economic and international trade issues?

The World Trade Organization should also get more powers, so that it can penalize countries that don't follow the international trade laws. One is intellectual property rights. All international patents will be vigorously enforced. Currently some nations force companies to reveal their trade secrets to them and also to start business ventures with them; then these companies are allowed to trade in that country. And of course counterfeit products businesses will be dealt with. Stealing other peoples' and business' intellectual properties has been going on way too long.

Who do you think will resist the UN reform the most?

When it comes to nations; China, Russia and the US will most likely resist it the most. Arm manufactures and dealers, and other similar groups that benefit from wars and conflict. Of course some of the UN personnel. Not everyone in the UN wants to go through a total makeover, especially if that may mean that you may lose your job.

But surprisingly, it might also be some of the peace and other similar organizations that will resist it. Some peace organizations are cash cows for countless of thousands of people, and they would hate to lose their jobs. But of course there are many good organizations also, and I am confident that they will support this idea. Actually if a peace organization does not support this effort that is a good sign that they really don't want peace, but to keep on doing what they have been doing for decades with very little results.

Also it's very difficult for some people and organizations to get behind other people's ideas. No one wants to admit someone else may have a better idea. It takes a strong person with good self-worth to start supporting someone else's idea.

As humans we really don't like major change at all. It seems that we always must go through the same cycle: First We Resist, Then We Adapt, Then We Love. The first computers and cellphones were mostly a curiosity, internet was just a toy and now cryptocurrencies are just scams. We did learn to love computers, cell phones, internet and soon people will adapt using cryptos and then next they are going to love them.

It takes a really open minded person to be able to see the benefits of something new, especially if it's a major life changing idea. Are you one of the few who is openminded enough to look at this world changing plan with an unbiased mind?

Will the New UN put stop to the current exploitation capitalism?

We are already living in post-democracy. The definition for it, as described by Colin Crouch, who coined this term is: "A post-democratic society is one that continues to have and to use all the institutions of democracy, but in which they increasingly become a formal shell. The energy and innovative drive pass away from the democratic arena and into small circles of a politico-economic elite."

The New UN can not put stop to it per se, but I firmly believe that even this current rampant corporate greed and uncaring will change almost by itself in time, because the New UN will show the world the new way of governing. Also peaceful world will affect every soul here, so that We the People will become more humane and then we will naturally be more concerned about everyone's well being, and not only profits. We the People must reform ourselves first, and then the rest of the world will reform itself; we are the leaders of corporations, banks and countries.

Corporate profits are important and I am not trying to say that corporations should not make good profits. But we all know that the top brass in many corporations are getting greedy, as are the stockholders. As the world gets transformed, I am sure that will will find a good balance in this area too.

What if some countries stay outside the new UN?

It's obvious that for example North Korea, Venezuela, Syria, some other Arab countries and also some other small nations may stay out. Most rogue and troublesome countries would stay outside. In time they could be lured in with monetary aid and other incentives and/or pressured economically and politically. If a county resists joining, it's not because of the people of that country want to stay outside, but because the leaders want to keep the power. In most of these countries there are many good people in the armed forces and the government who would want to join the New UN, and they could stage a coup. By doing that they could also save their own skin on the trials, because they helped the UN to get rid of bad leaders.

Also we must decide that should the UN be obligated to remove a bad leadership of a country that does not belong the UN? I firmly believe that the UN should have that power too. This rogue nation is still part of the family of the nations in the world, and its people are suffering. The UN could get rid of the leaderships of a nations like this, and then the new government/people would decide if they want to join the UN.

What if the current UN Security Council members stay outside?

I am very confident that at France, England and the US will join the New UN. Maybe the US government would not want to join, but the people will force it to join. There still is the possibility that China and Russia would stay outside. But by doing so they would lose face, because they would show the world that they don't want what's good for the world, but only what's good for them.

If any nation would stay outside, they would feel isolated and could be pressured to join with sanctions and different pressure etc. Also We the People of the world could pressure them, by avoiding buying products or traveling to these countries. And even in China and Russia citizens could put pressure to their leaders. In few years these nations would start seeing that the peaceful world is also much more beneficial for them, than the old world order. Eventually all would join, for sure.

If China, Russia and the US would stay outside, what armed forces could the UN hire to do the clean up?

It could be coalition from these countries: England, France, Germany, Australia, Canada, India, Pakistan etc. Also even if the US would somehow be able to stay outside the new UN that doesn't exclude that its armed forces could not be hired to help the New UN.

There is always a fear that what if some group of people takes over the UN and enslaves us all. There are countless internal ways to ensure that there could not be any kind of power grap in the New UN.

Some peace activist are against using violence.

I understand them, and also I would like to resolve all the problems in the world with talk, but what if talk is not working? What if like in North Korea, where a crazy man is getting his Nukes ready and at the same time his people are suffering, starving and thrown into prison camps; how many years we keep on talking?

Kim Jong-un has his back against the wall. He knows that there is no peaceful way out for him. He will either killed by bombs, his own people or put into a prison for the rest of his life. This makes him very dangerous, because he's got nothing to lose.

Once he gets enough nukes, so that he has let's say 10 to 20 of them. He could easily shoot one of them to Tokyo, and then say that if we attack him, the next ones will be going to the US, China, South Korea, Europe etc. From that point on he will have the world on the palm of his hand. He can blackmail the world, and there is nothing we can do. He has already proven that he is crazy enough to do that. Do we want to keep on talking for years on end, when the risks are this magnitude?

Current terrorists and dictators are one thing, but we also have new advancing technologies to worry about. Lasers and other theological arms are getting more powerful. What if in five years we can print Bazooka, land mines, hand grenades with a 3d printer? I am sure that it's only matter of time that one could make a small electronic bomb in his garage that could take out the power grid of a small area. Also even home computers could soon be powerful enough that we can make biological and chemicals weapons in our garages. My point is that we MUST clean the world out of wars, tyrants and terrorism NOW, before it's too late. We must create a peaceful world NOW, so that we might be able to avoid going on the route I paint above. The world is like rat infested housing complex; you will never get rid of the rats little by little; you must do a major clean up. After that it will be a lot easier to keep it clean.

Who will pay for the UN reform?

Of course it will be all the member nations. Since the New UN will bear a huge cost for the overseeing and taking care of the world there will be a UN fee that the nations must pay according to their Gross National Product. I am certain that the money would not be problem. Rich nations, businesses, rich people and even normal people could all make donations to a reform fund.

Also the New UN will be streamlined. All unnecessary departments, overlaps etc. would be cut out; and there are ton of those. This alone would mean huge savings. In this day and age, every nation should be able to find English speaking delegates to send to the UN. There is a huge amount of waste in translations etc. Cutting most of it off could save the UN as much as it cost to reform it. And no matter how big the cost will be, it will be worth it.

What if individual countries don't want to give up their sovereignty to the UN?

Didn't many countries do that by joining to the EU? That was a total power grab, if there ever was one. What would any country give up by joining to the New UN? I cannot think one single negative thing. They would be gaining a tremendous value from it. One of the biggest values would be that the member nations would be protected if attacked by any other nation. Member countries could in few years spend $\frac{2}{3}$ of their defence budget to other areas. Only the leaders of the countries that mistreats their citizens would feel the negative consequences.

The New UN will also be obligated to help any nation that is not able to take care of its citizens. These two benefits alone would ensure that most nations would want to join in the new UN. The UN reform is be the world changing event we have been waiting for!

How could the UN afford to help all the struggling nations of the world to feed, provide shelter, basic health care and education to all?

Of course it could not do it overnight. Most impoverished nations have inefficient, corrupt and greedy leadership. In many cases a country could survive on its own if the leaders would not steal the money. For example Nigeria, the leaders keep/steal huge amounts of the oil wealth that the nation produces. There are countless similar countries that have enough money to take care of their citizens, but the money doesn't trickle down to the people

Also the aid we currently give to the poor nation might be enough, if it went where it was supposed to go. In some cases 60 to 90% of the aid money, food and goods disappear before it reaches the intended people. Governmental and private charities are notorious of having huge overhead and bloated salaries, which eat up most of the aid money, on top of what the corrupt officials in the aid countries steal. Money to help impoverished countries already is there, but it's not going to the right addresses.

Many people will be out of work if there are no longer need for arms.

Yes, this plan will also have "negative" effects like this, but this is progress for the better world. We cannot keep fighting wars just because we want to keep the arm manufacturers and dealers in business. When airplane travel got more popular, it had an huge impact to ocean liners, trains and bus services. The Internet put many business out of business etc. This is how the world works.

Many arms manufactures will find new products to develop and to build. Warplane manufactures could start building civilian airplanes, spacecraft etc. Russian arms manufacturer Kalashnikov has already been branching out for example powerboats, UAV's (Unmanned Aerial Vehicle), multi rotor hoverbike and their latest product is all-terrain military and police electric motorcycles. Maybe Kalashnikov knows that wars are about to end? And of course there still will be need for arms for police, national guards and small armies that most nations will still maintain. And at least some of the biggest countries will still have massive armed forces for the next decade and beyond.

What would the new UN do with North Korea?

It's almost impossible to come up with any plans now, since the situation will be different when the New UN will open its doors, compared to what it's now. I believe that this situation will be resolved by then. All in all, the situation looks more and more like there will be some sort of armed conflict. They have been developing a hydrogen bomb, which is much more powerful than a nuclear bomb. The destructive force can be 100 or even 1,000 times greater than that of the nuclear bomb.

Because of the tests blasts in North Korea mountain range. the mountain are in danger of collapsing. Should that happen the prevailing winds would carry a huge clouds of radioactive material to China. But for the Chinese leaders it's more important to play power games with the US, rather than force the North Korea to stop the bomb program. This just proves it all over again that these leaders just don't care about the world, just their power games. China has been supporting North Korea even though it's illegal to do so, because of the sanctions. If the New UN would have been in power North Korean situation would have been resolved AFTER the first breaking of international nuclear laws. It's insane the the world leaders don't learn that is is useless to keep on negotiation for years with crazy leaders or countries. They must be put in order before the situation grows out of hand.

Maybe the generals of North Korea could be promised a pardon if they stage a coup before North Korea is bombed to ruins. The only way to save South Korean and other close by countries people's lives, is to make a massive first strike with all we got.

How is the New UN going deal with the terrorism?

It will take a leading role in that too. Of course the country where the terrorist are, is going to be part of the team. The UN is obligated to help any nation that is being attacked by any large group of terrorist or freedom fighters etc., whether they come from outside or inside of that country. Now in some countries the leaders just don't care about cleaning the terrorist out, because the uncertainty and constant fear of bombs etc. keep citizens' minds preoccupied with fear of the terrorists. Meanwhile the army generals get kickbacks from arms manufacturers and the rulers can empty the coffers of the country. If you want to know why something is the way it is, look who is making money with the situation. Follow the money!

One major difference will be that any armed conflict is going to be dealt with immediately. Now we wait for years to see how they develop, while thousands of people get killed and huge numbers of people are dislocated. If a country cannot stop the terrorist, then the UN will go in with massive enough force to stop them on their tracks before it gets out of hand. This applies to major terrorist groups, not individual or small groups; they are countries' internal issues.

What if the UN starts meddling with the internal issues of its member countries?

That will be prohibited by laws. The UN will be in charge only MAJOR international issues. For example wars, terrorism, arms control, border disputes, overall human well being, climate change, whale hunting, major fishing quotas, nature and animal protection, deforestation, pollution issues etc.

For example the climate change; how could it ever be resolved when both sides of the issue basically pay for the experts to testify the way they want? Also test results have been meddled with. In the US, the Democrats are for it, and the Republicans are against it. As long as this is a political issue, it will never be solved. Also many nations find ways to cheat, so what good are the international treaties, if they cannot be enforced? Big issues like this must be decided in an environment that is non political and non bias either way. Only then we can find some common way and consensus. Also the New UN must have the authority to enforce these laws and to fine and penalize the countries that are not obeying them.

Another example, let's say that we realize that the Brazilian rainforest really are the lungs of the earth and they must stop cutting it down. Whatever the excuse the Brazil may use, it's not going to be enough to justify that we jeopardize the well being of the earth. This is such a huge issue for the whole world that the New UN must go in the Brazil and stop it, if the Brazilian government is not able to stop it.

In cases like this, when rainforest and other HUGE areas of the land are cleared for agriculture they are mostly done by big greedy multinational corporations. This happens ever increasing speed in many countries around the world. Soybean fields in South America are one big culprit. They all have the same excuse; people need food. But that's a lie. If the governments in those counties would not steal all the money and businesses would pay at least a minimum wage, the people would have enough money to buy food etc. It's the big greedy businesses that are the worst offenders in these issues.

When it comes to meddling with the member nations, the European Union is the opposite of what the New UN will be. EU controls almost everything in the member countries. They even had a law that Cucumbers cannot be too crooked. That led to a huge waste, because of big part of the harvest had to be thrown out. That law was repealed, but every year the EU keeps on adding new totally useless laws and rules. In time the EU will gain total control of the member nations.

Many people are against centralizing power into one institution.

During the past 30 some years it seems to me that many western countries are deteriorating when China has thrived. Our roads, bridges and airports are old and falling apart, when in China they are new and they just keep on building more and more of them. China is an economical miracle, due to a large part of its centralized governing style. I am not saying that we should adopt what China has, but it has worked for them, as we in the west have been going backwards.

We need to centralize the MAJOR decisions about the world to one neutral power. People are afraid of this because in the past this has led to dictatorships; like it did with Mao and Stalin. It's just about impossible that the New UN would become a police state or dictatorship. Those days are long gone, but people still have this knee jerk reaction to this when ever centralized power comes up.

European Union ja United States are centralized powers, and they seem to work ok. But the New UN will work even better, because it will be lead by professionals without political wrangling or religious ideology. All decisions would be made for the goodness of the world, by people who are professionals in each matter they work on. Not by politicians who are professionals only in protecting their own power.

What is your warning to the tyrants of the world?

When the new laws become effective in the UN, then there is no longer possibility of any tyrants of getting off free. No more getting "golden handshake" and comfortable retirement. Then the UN is obligated to remove and prosecute these tyrants.

Until the gavel hits the desk in the UN headquarters; the unruly dictators could possibly get “a off the hook deal”. But if a dictator waits until the last minute before the new law becomes effective, the tougher the deal will be for them and their accomplices. Sooner they walk away, the better deal they may get.

Murder never gets cold. Even old crimes will be investigated and already retired ex tyrants and army chiefs are not going to be safe. When the UN takes over the nation, its citizens will feel safe to start giving testimony on all kinds of old crimes. Lower ranking people will be promised deals if they can indicate the higher ups. Generally speaking the UN will mainly go after the higher level government, police and armed forces leaders. Lower ranking members were in most cases ordered to commit these crimes.

There will not be bail. These tyrants will be waiting for the trial in the same prisons they threw their opponents and innocents people. All their property will be confiscated and bank accounts will be frozen. Even the leaders and army chiefs’ families and close up friends and business partners properties will be confiscated if they are determined to be gotten illegally.

All unexplainable wealth will be confiscated. Many accountants, close friends and lower ranking people will aid the investigations in order to save their own skin. So it will be very easy to find the hidden bank accounts etc., and to prove financial crimes.

How are the legal proceedings done?

Of course the New UN and the International Courts will determine that, but I would conduct them in the actual countries, not in Hage. First there will be a through evidence collection period, witnesses are lined up and after all that is done, the temporary court is set up. Most judges should be from that particular country. Of course there should also be international presence, but it’s better if the country’s own people deal with their criminals.

The laws as how to the tyrants are tried, should be simple and clear, so that they will not be able to hire, with the money they have stolen from their own country a “dream team” to defend themselves, so that the trial will last for years on end.

In most cases it will be very clear what crimes they have committed, so this process will be fast. Also they should not be prosecuted for every single crime or murder they have committed, because it will take too long time to gather all the evidence to prove each individual case. If a tyrant is found guilty of few murders and financial crimes that will be enough to put him away for life. All the other crimes that he is suspected of committing could be read in the court so that the families of the victims of them, will get closure too. Idea is that this process is speedy, so that the country can start moving on.

Of course all accused will get a fair trial, but not like it's in many western countries where just a little doubt will get you off. Often criminals have more rights than victims, police or prosecutors. Prosecutor has a lot tougher job to prove the case, than the defence. After the country is liberated, culprits are in prison, properties are confiscated, then this country can start rebuilding itself with a new leaders and laws.

How should independence issues be handled?

I think it will be very healing for the world if areas of some countries that have been forcefully taken could become independent, or join back to their original motherland. The UN will come up with the rules and laws regarding all of these border and independence movement issues. These laws will be voted in the UN, so every nation is part of putting these laws together. International Courts will hear these cases, and the UN will enforce them.

These laws must be based on common sense, for example was the area taken by force in a war? How long ago? How well has this area been integrated into the current country? Would breaking it off cause major upheaval to the people who live there? Do the people of that area want to leave this country, or is it just some small group of people? Is it just an ethnic group that wants to be independent? What are the ground for breaking off?

I would think that the start of World War II, or I could serve a good cut of point, because they both were major wars that affected to the most of the nations in the world. If some area was taken way before that, it's now part of new nation, but there could be some special cases.

What is the other option, if we don't reform the UN?

This may give you some idea of it: China's president declared on October 2017 that China's goal is to tighten the armed forces and civilian life more together; whatever that means. Also their goal is to be the world leader and to have a world class armed forces between the years 2035-2050. This means that Russia, India, England, Germany and the US must keep up with China. Arm race is going to continue forever. Unless we stop it; we can stop this utter craziness!

China and Russia are building their armed forces like there is no tomorrow. Russia is (supposedly) scared of the NATO waging a war against it and taking it over. Are these leaders really this crazy, or are they just playing a game of uncertainty and fear? It's very hard for me to believe that the Russians really fear that the NATO will wage war against it, and that the Chinese feel that they will need all those arms for an actual war. Could all this be because politicians and our leaders can hold on the power the easiest when times are uncertain and constant fear of war is present?

No country in the world can even dream about taking over the world; just because there are so many nukes, it's impossible for that to happen. Is it possible that the US, Russia and/or China could have a limited war? They all know that even a limited war could easily escalate to a full blown nuclear war. So because of all this, I believe that the war machine that these countries are building is happening because the leaders and politicians are in the pockets of the arms manufactures and dealers.

In the US the arms lobby is very powerful. Normally Republicans and Democrats hardly ever agree on any issues, but not so surprisingly most wars they agree on. Could this be because they both are so heavily lobbied on?

It really is beyond all my imagination that in this century we are still fearful of each other and spend most of our money to arms, wars and all kinds of conflicts. I would understand this kind of thinking, if we were living in the 1800, but not today. So the question is; are our leaders' mental states based on the thinking of the 1800's, or is the deep state, arm manufacturers and arm dealers who are in charge here?

No matter what the answer is, we must break free from this utter craziness, before it destroys us. Our leaders will wake up when major war breaks out, or when the rising sea level starts washing the toes of the Statue of the Liberty in New York. Then they will start blaming the old administrations for these problems. Even then, they will not be able to reach in any kind of consensus, because politics is like that. Our current UN is not capable of ruling the world; we must reform it, and give it the keys to rule the world before it's too late.

If we add the cost of all wars, armed conflicts, freedom fighting, national guards, armies, police force, private guards etc. I am quite confident to say, that close to 30% of all the monies we have in the world go to these areas. And if we count the cost of rebuilding bombed out countries, hospitalization of the people who know how much that all cost.

What can We the People do for our cities and countries?

Very good question. We the People have become too docile and dependent on governments. If there is street sign that is leaning and ready to fall down, no one cares, even though it could easily be propped up with a stone wedge. We wait and expect that the city workers will fix it. We don't even bother to call the city maintenance department about the sign, even though if it falls down, we or our child could get hurt because some driver don't see the sign.

We also depend on the government when we are out of work, sick, want free schools, etc. During the last century America drew people, me included to its shores who were willing to work hard and who didn't expect the government to take care of them. That is one reason why it became a superpower. It had workers and business people who were willing to work for their success. But the last few decades the politicians in the US, in order to get votes have given more and more benefits to the unions and people. That's why many municipalities and states are at breaking point. They just cannot afford to keep on paying the high benefits and pensions. This trend has nothing to do with fiscal sensibility or even with real caring of the people, it was done only to get (buy) votes. We will be paying a hefty price for this utmost stupidity and political creed; just wait and see.

Also in Europe governments started all kinds of social welfare programs in the 60's and 70's. These programs were mostly good and needed, but they were designed for that time period, when there were a lot less people and all; schools, healthcare and retirement cost much less. These programs grew year after year because politicians just kept promising new programs and more money to people, in order to get their votes. Now the cost of these programs has gotten way out of hand.

We must scale them down, because no nation can afford to keep on paying for them indefinitely. Don't get me wrong; I support of taking care of the poor, sick and elderly, but in most countries these programs are inefficient, badly run and badly abused. Some countries there are already second, third and even fourth generations that live mostly on government support. We must start taking a hard look at these programs and first clean all the abuse out, make them efficient and then give people incentives and even gently force them back to workforce and out of the aid programs. It's very difficult to feel good about yourself and your life if you live on governments help, even though you could support yourself with work. This actually destroys lives; these people will end up in local beer pubs and become alcoholics and drug addicts.

As the UN needs streamlining, so do our governments. A big percentage of the tax revenue goes to waste. Over the last few decades governments around the world have become bloated. We must dismantle these bloated beasts and rebuild them from the scratch, as we do with the UN.

We the People must take a control of our cities. What good is the world peace for us, if we are not able to walk fear free in our own cities and neighborhoods? What good is for you, if there is peace in some African country, if you cannot walk to a local market because you might be beaten, robbed on knife point or molested? Or you are scared that your child may be lured into using drugs or getting into a gan etc.? We must take our neighborhoods back from hooligans, gans and criminals. We should not wait for the police to get it done for us.

We must be part of the solution. First and foremost; stop causing any havoc by littering or any other way, and teach this also to your children. Doing your part and instilling that to your family, will strengthen the family ties. There is no greater gift you can give to your children than good solid values, morals and ethics. Taking care of your neighborhood with your family is real quality time together. You will be teaching them very important life lessons. Also keep your own yard and building clean whether it's an apartment or a private house. Show pride in your home and neighborhood.

Start picking up a few pieces of trash when you walk outside. Organize cleaning parties. Buy some paint and paint over any graffiti you see in government property. If it is private property and people cannot afford to cover the graffiti, offer to do it for them. Ask a local paint shop for paint donations, or hardware store for supplies to repair playground etc. Get local business excited about improving their surrounding areas.

Also you can organize safety patrols. Take photos of any gangs hanging around, suspicious cars or people and youth groups that might be into a trouble. Make a note of the day and time. Get a security cameras and point them to your yard and also public roads. If enough people would instal security cameras; and then there is a major crime, the culprits would certainly be in someone's camera. Many serious crimes would avoided and/or solved with these steps alone. Doing your part will make your neighborhoods safer, more livable and you will gain new new renewed energy and optimistic outlook on life.

Also if you know there is any drug or other serious crimes being committed in your neighborhood, call/email the police (anonymously if you want) and give them the details of the operation. It's really strange that selling drugs is less of an evil than being a snitch. Even though these drug pushers are just waiting for your child to get old enough to start selling them drugs. How many thousands of teenage girls have been lured into drugs and now they sell themselves in order to get the next hit. These numbers could easily be radically reduced, if we would take our neighborhoods back from the criminals and gangs, which now rule them.

Some people are afraid that this snitching, safety patrols and cameras will lead to Soviet Union kind of society, where everybody was spying on their neighbours. It will not. We should concentrate only on serious crimes; drugs, stolen property, violent gangs etc. After our cities are cleaned out, then the need for surveillance would lessen. If you are law abiding citizens, then you have nothing to be fearful of. People who are up to no good, are most vocal opponents of this kind of a plan.

In many countries, even in peaceful nations like in Scandinavia we must give the police, customs and border guards special powers for a limited time; for example for five years. So that they can do their job and clean our cities and to keep drugs and gun out of our nation. For example in the city of New York there was a law that gave the police permission to frisk anyone for guns. This reduced a lot of the guns and also the gun grime. We need to give the police powers that they need to do the clean up.

If you are law abiding citizen, your part in this is to maybe be stopped by the police and your car is inspected for drugs etc. Don't get mad to the police how they dare to stop you because you are not a criminal. Just see it as a similar safety procedure as there are in airports. Anyone could be randomly pulled off the line for a closer inspection. It's done for your safety. This little inconvenience is the price you are paying for a safer city.

We don't have to be scared of the police. Those days of fear of a police state, are long gone. There should be harsh penalties if any law enforcement officer is caught misusing these enhanced powers. We must do a super cleanup, in order to be able to start a fresh in clean and livable cities. Once the cleanup is done, it will be much more easy to keep the law and order. We have ignored this problem too long, there is no way to remedy this with small steps; we must do it once and for all.

If you ever seen movies or photos of 1970's and 80's New York, you remember how every building, subway car inside out, delivery truck and empty spot was covered in graffiti. Crime; murders, robbing, burglaries, rape etc. were rampant. Every apartment door had a strong iron bar that kept the door secured. People lived in constant fear. Now there is lot less graffiti, crime is way down and iron bars have be recycled into soft drink cans. The city didn't clean itself, but the city leadership made a decision that this is enough, and cleaned up the city. If they could do it, so can we.

When you hear about a problem in your city or neighborhood, do something about it. I read that people want to buy only perfect fruits and vegetables; so because of this, a huge amounts of produce is thrown out; I started to buy Strawberries and Apples that are now perfectly round. This is a small act, but if we all do this, we would save a huge amounts of recourses that is spend on growing these imperfect produces. I also keep on painting over graffiti in a small electrical box in front of my home in Finland. It takes me a few minutes to do. Small things matter. Look around to see what can you do!

When we start reforming the UN, we must reform our own lives, neighborhoods, cities and countries also. Then and only then we will be able to say that we have a true WORLD PEACE and we are leading good lives. We simply cannot expect the UN reform, or our politicians to take care of fixing all the world's problems, we MUST be a BIG part of the solution, and we also MUST be willing to DO OUR PART reforming our own lives, families and neighborhoods!

We need everyone's help in order to transform every city, county and the whole world to the paradise they can be; especially YOUR help.

What kind of people will the New UN draw to itself?

In most, if not all of the countries of the world politics draw mostly power hungry, big ego, narcissistic maniacs. This is not my assessment. Some experts go as far as saying that most politicians are psychopaths. These people enjoy constant crisis and upheaval They love to be in the lime light pretending of solving yet another major problem. They never do resolve anything, but just bandage it for the moment. Today's government draws this kind of people like a roadkill draws flies.

Some people who have good moral judgement and high values get into politics in hopes of changing it; they either quit in a year or two, or become just like the rest of the politicians are. Cold pro politicians who only care about power and fame.

When we set up a new governing model in the New UN, in which high values, morals and ethics govern every decision that are being made? What kind of people would that draw to the New UN? Would today's typical politician thrive in that kind of an environment? I don't think so.

In every government around the world and also in the UN, there already are thousands of these people who feel that working for the people of a nation is their calling. I call them invisible gray mass. They are the core of any work force that keeps things together, but they never ever get the credit for it. In politics or in business it's the loud mouth, big ego leaders who steal all the glory that these people should have.

This gray mass would be willing to work for free, because they feel that dedicated to the well being of the world. But in the New UN they will be properly compensated and also they will get the glory for running the New UN. This is what kind of people the New UN will draw to its doors. These people can have their own political and religious views, but they will smart enough that they will leave them at the coat check, when they start making decisions in the New UN.

This is why I am very confident that getting the UN reformed would not be that difficult of a task that it may seem to many people. Yes it's true that with the current energy and people in place there, it would be just about impossible to get it reformed. But with new people and new values and ethics, it will be a breeze. The UN already has a lot of dedicated people who would love to reform and work for the New UN.

Just think about what kind of an energy would this create in the New UN! The huge issues that we now argue about for years without getting any meaningful results, would be resolved in a few meetings. People would work tirelessly and with full of energy because they see clear result for their efforts, and most importantly; they see how the world gets better by the month. With that kind of an energy and cooperation between people, the New UN could solve the most major problems we now face in one single year.

I know, the cynics out there are laughing by now. And I agree with them, I have been very cynical of any major improvements or reforms about for example climate change treaty, arms reduction deals etc., because they have never worked. Simply because they always are watered down compromises that protect some powers and countries. They are NEVER done ONLY for the goodness and well being of the people and this world. Just stop to think about of the power of a decision, which is done ONLY for the goodness and the well being of the people and this world. How powerful would that be!

There will be a different BREED of people in charge of the New UN. The breed, whose foremost concerned is what's good for the world and its people. They know that what's good for the people and the world itself, is good for the corporations and nations too.

This all would lead to more open societies, opportunities, better education and healthcare for all. There would be more healthy and economically profitable relationships between nations. Russia would not need to be isolated. It could become a respected and good partner for all the other nations of the world. Same with China, it could become a full fledged international power it's capable of being in the New UN. Outside of the UN it would be isolated from any decision making in the world.

Imagine

Like the late John Lennon said "Imagine", the world without wars would be a paradise. No more uncertainty and being scared of where the next armed conflict or war is going to break out.

The energy that will be released around the world, when we can ALL finally collectively sigh with relief that THE WAR IS FINALLY OVER, will be incredible. It will give us so much hope, optimism, joy, energy and most importantly love for this world and all of its citizens that this energy will lift us from the mediocre existence that most of us now lead, to the new highs that we cannot even imagine now.

With all the money we save from not fighting wars, we will have enough money to find cure for all the disease that ail and kill us. We will be able to create new body parts and medical procedures that abels us live a long and healthy life.

We could solve all the major problems in the world because we would reach a consensus in the New UN about them. Now we just keep on arguing about them for years on end. And whenever we do reach a some sort of an agreement, it's watered down and most nations don't respect them. Now we let a few insane world leaders to keep us in constant turmoil and fear. We keep on arguing and fighting over petty issues, while we could be concentrating the important things around us and live large.

We could solve why we are here on this beautiful planet, and what's beyond these absolutely stunning celestial objects contained in the Messier catalogue. (NASA images captured by the Hubble Space Telescope.)

When given the chance, the people will start doing their part for the world, whatever that may mean for each person. Picking up trash in their own neighbours, painting over graffiti or taking their neighborhoods back from the gangs etc. There will be pride in one's own life, work, families, property and neighbourhoods.

When there is this kind of hope, now many broken down people who are into drugs and crime will have a new opportunity to have decent life. Most importantly young people in the inner cities wouldn't feel so discouraged and overwhelmed that they could avoid getting into drugs and criminal pathht. Now in the US there are whole cities run down by all kinds of drugs. That's because people feel left out from the society and the American dream. They feel hopeless, because they will never be able to succeed and provide good livelihood for their families. Media show/advertize to them what they must have in order to be somebody, happy and successful, but they know inside they will never get there. Knowing that you will never be enough will slowly kill your soul. People may work two or even three jobs, but still not get ahead. Years of this kind of abuse by the big corporations and governments; sooner or later people will break down and then all they have to soothe their broken souls is alcohol and drugs.

We Europeans see these US problems on TV, but they are coming to us too, no matter how far we are from the US. I just read that in my small hometown of Lahti, Finland they find big quantities of ecstasy in sewage water especially during weekends. We must stop this madness before it destroys us; because it will! Ask yourself, do you want to see your children and grandchildren to grow up in drug infested cities? If not, do something about it!

Where will the UN reform lead?

It's impossible to even dream of where the UN reform will take us. Just like in the 1990's we could not even dream about, how the Internet will change the world. We now face the same unknow with the New United Nations.

How could you ever know where the UN reform will lead us, when every new good deed inspires a new even greater good deed. All I know, it will be wonderful!

You may say I'm a dreamer

But I'm not the only one

I hope someday you'll join us

And the world will be as one.
